SOME ELEMENTAL PRINCIPLES—PERTINENT INQUIRIES.

The Examiner, in reply to the Record-Union, and dropping its vituperative style, attempts to treat the question of uniform rates, and in doing so makes prominent either its ignorance of commercial principles or its willful avoidance of them. But since it asks questions indicative of a desire to learn, we prefer to accept the former explanation of its peculiar views.

In responding to its inquiries the extreme simplicity of statement seems to be demanded, inasmuch as our former analysis of the intricacies of uniform or equal mileage rates in such a country as California covered the entire question, but seems not to have reached the comprehension of the Examiner. Uniform rate, it holds, takes into account "the entire length of a line and the whole traffic upon it." On this basis, then, there is no escape from the proposition that those contributing most business to the line on a thickly settled section, must bear, according to this theory, a special transportation tax, in order that a few residents on the borders of the Mohave desert may enjoy equal transportation and commercial advantages. Is that the logic a city proposes to stand by that constantly objects to the law requiring her to stand in the same relation to the rest of the world as the rest of the world stands to her?

It is possible that if the plan is entered upon, the resident companies in Sacramento would guarantee to furnish the necessary military band, and the barracks quarters. It is probable that some companies of the scattered battalion, with headquarters at Oakland, might unite in the scheme. The suggestions are made without the knowledge of, or consultation with, the local military authorities, and stand upon their own legs, and appear to us not only feasible but very desirable, and they will meet with hearty approval from the members of the men who died for the cause we hold to be just and right.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

ENCAMPMENTS—WHAT IT IS PROPOSED TO DO.

General Order No. 24, issued from the Adjutant General's office under date of June 18, reads as follows: "In view of the insufficient amount appropriated by the last Legislature for the expenses of the N. G. C. for the thirty-fourth and thirty-fifth fiscal years, no regimental encampments will be held, and no permission will be granted to any regiment, by brigade or other commands, to go into camp during the next fiscal year."

There is a dispensation among all regiments and company officers to hold encampments on their own responsibility. This suggests the probability that under the law nothing will be no trouble to collect the money from the State. Nobody pretends to deny that the deficiency arises from the additional expense incurred in maintaining the regiments in Sacramento. This is a Democratic regiment, and it is claimed by many that their admittance to the National Guard is a political consideration advanced during the campaign of last fall.

There is a call published that morning for a meeting of the officers of the First Artillery Regiment, to be held at headquarters. The nature of going into camp will be discussed. The people of Woodland have raised about $1,000 and camp privileges have brought about $500 more, making a total sum of $1,500. By being very economical the regiment is already in a position to meet its expenses. It is the opinion of the regimental commanding officer in Sacramento that the men will be well paid. This is a great benefit to the Sacramento regiment, particularly, it being the only occasion where its companies get together. The members of the regiment are staying at Campionville at Nevada City and another at Woodland. Every one who understands the matter will not hesitate to say that the companies derive more benefit from the eight days' encampment than from the time spent in the general duties of a soldier, than a twelve months' drill in armories. The arrangements are all completed, contract let for furnishing rations, transportation, etc., and all is well. It is to be hoped that they will raise additional funds to carry on the encampment, and, if concerted action is had, it should not be a difficult matter. The officers are anxious to put the regiment into camp as soon as possible, but the adjutant general has suggested that a step should be put to the government at this late day, after being encouraged by the authorities, who were of the opinion that the men would be willing to go. At the time of the funeral of the Queen, the men were fully afflicted with rheumatism that he had to be assisted into the wagon. Some three years ago he was thrown from a cart and had one of his shoulders severely dislocated. ADJOURNED to 8.30 A. M.—day.

THE TROY MURDER CASE.

The examination of Salvadore Troi, charged with wife murder, proceeds very slowly, and will in all probability last a week longer. Great interest is taken in the case and the Court-room is crowded daily with spectators.

O. C. Jackson took the witness stand at 10 A. M. yesterday. The District Attorney examined him at great length regarding the spots of blood on the floor of Troi's home. He stated to the District Attorney that he would not believe Rafferty's oaths; that a man was guilty of such an atrocious crime, and that he had kept it locked up in his breast for fifteen months, was a dangerous individual, and he would not consider him innocent. The District Attorney endeavored to impress upon the jury that the defense application was not drawn according to law, witness said that the vouchers presented yesterday were received for payments made to him from the $34,000 borrowed by witness on an order of the Board of Directors. There was no voucher presented to the Controller when the money was drawn; none of the vouchers presented in the examination have ever been before the Board of Directors.

Mr. Jackson, in his examination, said that he believed Lentini was the murderer, and entirely scouted the idea that Troi was guilty. He said that he did not believe that he cannot be held responsible, because the witness was prejudiced in the case; that he fully believed that Lentini was the murderer, and entirely scouted the idea that Troi was guilty. He said that he did not believe that one but Lentini murdered that woman, until some one beside Rafferty will swear that he witnessed the murder. For about two hours the witness was engaged in fighting between the witness and the District Attorney over conversations they had held at various times. It was difficult to tell at times which was the attorney, Carey or Jackson.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

W. H. Fruett, sworn: I live in San Joaquin county. I called at Troy's place on the evening after the homicide, and served on the Coroner's Jury. I am a witness in the case, and was on the jury, but saw him sign the verdict, and also remembered that he corrected the spelling of the name of Peter Corroello. After the examination the witness was asked if he could not say that Lentini with the murder, and read it plainly and distinctly, and Rafferty and the rest of us signed the document. I don't remember whether Rafferty signed it or not. I do not know if he signed it, but I saw him get it and sign it.

I did not leave the room from the time the inquest was commenced until the verdict was signed, and I don't think anyone else did.

Charles F. Quiggle, sworn: I went to Troy's house with the First Artillery and the coroner's jury. I am a witness in the case, and was on the jury. I was present when the verdict was sworn in. The Board paid for my services.

Witness corroborated J. V. Ellis' statement in regard to the alleged sale of state to the prison; the Board paid for the hay at contractors' price.
